PORTLAND, Dec. 2, 1874.

Prof. Sylvanus Miller

Dear Sir—Dissatisfied by you, I wish to bear testimony to the efficacy of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. During the past year I have suffered greatly from that common and agonizing affection, Rheumatism. My shoulder was so affected that my left arm was powerless and I despaired of ever using it. Only a few days ago I was induced, by hearing of the many marvellous cures accomplished by the agent while staying at the Preble House, to buy a bottle. It made such to say that with six bottles in the residence of my family, by the taking of five small bottles I was entirely relieved. As I write, both shoulder and arm are limber, and I am still at night and free from pain with a confident expectation of the return at the feeling of new life I experience. I attribute a cure of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure. Have the audacity to pass my testimony and experience around for the benefit of suffering humanity.

FURTHER PROOF.

CAPE ELIZABETH, Nov 12, 1874.

Prof. Sylvanus Miller

Dear Sir—Believing it to be right to certify that I have been a sufferer from rheumatism very literally for the past three years and during the last year no sufferings have been beyond description. In short everything I could hear of but obtained no relief until I tried the "Diamond Rheumatic Cure." It is truly a wonderful remedy. Respectfully yours, AMANDA M. BROWN

Mrs. Capt. Baldwin is witness to this statement

The discovery of this medicine called the nurses of the hospitals of London and Paris for the past twenty years, making restitutions a specialty, and the prescription from which this remedy is compounded in all histories used in the treatment of this disease. It is a sure cure sometimes one or two doses suffice. In the most chronic cases it is sure to give way by the use of four or five bottles. Put up and prepared for the Mass. Laboratory Association by P. W. CONNER, 18 Court St., Boston. For sale every where. If it happens at your Druggists have not yet got it in stock, ask him to send for it to the wholesale agents.

THE PROJECTED WATER WORKS

The breaking of ground for operations connected with the introduction of a regular water supply for the city is an event of considerable importance and a report of the inauguration of the enterprise yesterday is given in another column. There has been a strong feeling among our public-spirited citizens for some years that we should have an adequate supply of water, not only available as a protection against fire with which purpose it serves our business ways. Abundance of pure water for the household purposes is also a thing long and the prospects now are that within a few short months our city will be thoroughly supplied from the Penobscot.

There has in the past been a difference of opinion as to the source and method of the supply and that difference of opinion is a suitable basis for delay in providing the community with a system of water works. The proposition at the present enterprise is liable to be due to the popularity of the idea of obtaining a water supply with a development of our water power for manufacturing purposes. The advantages which will have come from the construction of a dam across the Penobscot that would afford facilities for manufacturing enterprises of the most prominent might not those of locations more than any other give water to the cities population.

We understand that the Commissioners have not abandoned the dam project, although the work of its construction has been offered until next year. Having secured upon the water enterprise, they deem it expedient to secure the works before commencing operations upon the dam and although this has rather revised the popular expectations those who felt the need of water are pleased at the prospect of an early supply.

We have already published the full text of the contract with the Holly Company for constructing the works and distributing service and without having critically examined the details, presume that the able committee which constitute the Board of Commissioners have carefully guarded the interests of the city. The benefits to be derived from a sufficient and reliable water service in the extinguishing of fires, the abatement of nuisances the promotion of cleanliness and health, and the affording of a great domestic convenience, are of an important character, and have undoubtedly been too long delayed. Now that the work has been actually commenced, we trust that it will be prosecuted and completed in a manner which shall prove entirely satisfactory to our citizens.

WHAT IS REPUDIATION?

From the N. Y. Times.

The Democratic papers of the State of Ohio declare that it is unjust to accuse the Democratic Convention of Ohio of recommending repudiation. But it is not unjust. It is in exact accordance with the truth. The resolutions of that convention, held on the 17th of June, included one, which, after referring to the policy of the Republican party, adopted in order to secure a resumption of specie payments, used the following language: "We demand that this policy be abandoned, and that the volume of currency be made and kept equal to the wants of trade, leaving the restoration of legal tenders to par with gold to be brought about by promoting the industries of the people, and not by crushing them."

The convention proposes to "abandon the policy" of the Republican party which looks to the payment of the legal-tender notes of the Government. What is that policy? It is embodied in the law passed Jan 14, 1875, which says: "On and after the 1st day of January, A. D., 1879, the Secretary of the Treasury shall redeem in coin the United States legal-tender notes then outstanding, on their presentation for redemption at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States, in the city of New York, in sums of no less than fifty dollars." This is a distinct promise, made by the Government of the United States, with all the forms of law observed, and having all the sanction which any law can have, to pay the legal-tender notes on and after Jan. 1, 1879. That promise has entered into the substance of the contract contained in every legal-tender note now in existence. It is as if each of these notes bore on its face the following words: "The United States will pay to bearer, on or after Jan. 1, 1879, one dollar in coin," which denomination as the coin of Assistant Treasurer of the United States in the city of New York." The only qualification of this promise is the requirement of the law that the notes shall be presented for redemption in sums not less than fifty dollars, but that does not affect the essence of the promise, it is a provision of mere convenience.) Now, every one will admit that if the language of the legal-tender notes had read as above when they were first issued, the country would have been obliged to pay them in coin at the date specified, or else to repudiate the promise to pay them then. A contract between two individuals can be altered by mutual consent, but our legal-tender notes are only contracts in a modified sense, they are in reality promises to pay which the promisor compelled the holders to accept. They are, therefore, the more binding, and their obligation more inviolable the honor of the Government, and they should be treated accordingly. If the Government should repudiate with the holders, and obtain an extension of time on the plea of straitened circumstances, that might be humiliating, but if no misrepresentation were made it would be fair. But the Government could hardly enter on any such negotiations. It might offer the holders of its notes the alternatives of taking coin or an interest-bearing gold bond. But it has not chosen to do that. It has chosen to promise in so many words that on and after Jan. 1, 1879, it will redeem its notes in coin. That promise being made, one of two things only can be done with it. It must either be kept or broken. The Republicans propose to do all they can to keep it. The Democrats, according to the Ohio platform propose to break it. The latter are repudiators. It is a hard word, but it is an exact one.

We do not need to reinforce our statement of the above facts. They are capable of absolute demonstration. There is no room for difference of opinion concerning the proposition that two and two make four, or that "yes" does not mean "no." Yet if additional argument were required, it would be found in the fact that the New York World falls in with our opinion, and employs in expressing it nearly the same language we took occasion to use immediately after the meeting of the Ohio Convention. Perhaps this is one of the "verses" in which, as the World admitted, "when Tweed was deposed, 'nothing but the truth' would answer. However that may be, we hasten to call attention to the position of the World while it occupies it. Next week it may be too late. That journal says: "The act of 1873 pledges the faith of the United States to the payment of the greenbacks in coin at a specified time January 1 1879." And it urges the Ohio Democrats to announce "The terms of that law are now entered into the contract and we must comply with them. We abhor repudiation, we refuse to break the contract."

THE OHIO PLATFORMS

Senator Thurman in his defense, suggests a parallel between the financial planks of the platforms of the Ohio Democrats and Republicans respectively. To perfect the comparison, at which the Senator only hints, we reproduced the planks as follows:

DEMOCRATIC

First—That the contraction of the currency heretofore made by the Republican party, and the further contraction proposed by it, with a view to the forced resumption of specie payment, has already produced disaster to the business of the country, and threatens general bankruptcy. We demand that the policy be abandoned, and that the volume of currency be made and kept equal to the wants of trade, leaving the restoration of legal tenders to par with gold to be brought about by promoting the industries of the people, and not by destroying them.

Ninth—That the policy initiated by the Republican party of abolishing legal-tenders and giving National Banks the power to furnish all the currency, will increase the power of an already too powerful money oligarchy, and the enormous burdens now oppressing the people without any corresponding advantage, and that we oppose the policy, and demand that all the National Bank circulation be promptly and permanently retired, and legal-tenders be issued in their place.

Tenth—That the public interest demands that the Government should cease to discredit its own currency, and should make its legal tenders receivable for all public dues, except where receipt for the obligations of contractors requires payment in gold; and that in favor the payment of at least one-half of the customs in legal-tenders.

Eleventh—The extension of the present National Banks and the establishment in their stead of a system of free banks of discount and deposit, under such regulations as the States may respectively prescribe, and no paper issue, except such as may be issued directly by and upon the faith of the General Government.

The Portland Press, having driven the Argus to the wall for its repetition of Fernando Wood's exploded statement about the number of Federal office-holders, has now turned its attention to the efforts of the same paper in misrepresenting the National expenditures for 1873. The Press quotes a detailed and authoritative statement of all the expenditures of that year, and remarks

"The above figures tell their own story, which is, that of the total expenditures of the year $157 192,416 81, or fifty-four per cent of the whole is directly chargeable to the war, for which many of the present leaders of the Democratic party in Maine are as responsible as any men can be who did not actually bear arms against the nation's cause. We are aware that the leaders of the Democracy love their semper when their situation is called on to play its part, as they did in the days of 1861-5, but so long as they attempt to force their share of the responsibility in the present taxation of the country upon the Republicans they must not complain when their page of infamous history is recited to them."

A Washington special says the mandamus against the Postmaster at New York relative to the constitutionality of the new postal law, and involving the jurisdiction of the two houses of Congress, embraces no questions that have not frequently been considered and which were not long since settled by Congress." The lawyers here think there is no case against the Postmaster.

The "aggressive" ardor of the Democrats is less apparent than immediately after their State Convention. The expressions in the Convention itself against prohibitory liquor laws, and the speech of Gen. Roberts declaring his hostility to them, rather overdid the thing. These indiscretions, taken in connection with the evident defeat in store for the Democrats in Ohio, have taken all the courage out of the party in Maine.—[Rockland Free Press.

THE BROOKLYN IMBROGLIO. A New York despatch says the civil suits instituted by Henry C. Bowen against the Brooklyn Eagle and against James McDermott, a reporter, for libel, are likely to be the first cases arising out of the Brooklyn scandal which will be brought to trial. Mr Bowen has expressed his determination to prosecute those suits, and it is believed the trial will be set down for an early day in September. The testimony of McDermott, who is to leave Brooklyn next week, will be taken on Friday or Saturday next. Mr. Bowen had three causes of action against the Eagle which were consolidated into one, and this action, it is believed, will be commenced prior to the trial of the indictment for perjury against Mr. Moulton. The trial of Mr. Bowen's suits will elicit a good deal of testimony having an important bearing upon the Beecher case.

It was stated Tuesday in District Attorney Britton's office, Brooklyn, that the trial of Leader would not take place before September, his counsel, Mr. Chapin, being unable to complete his arrangements for the hearing of the case this week. He will be admitted to bail in the sum of $2000, the sum his counsel expressed to give in the event of his release from jail.

TO THE LADIES.

I am now manufacturing French and Button Holes, the best to be found in New England. Those to its are really a Custom Made for $1 a dozen. The great trouble with the French Button Holes made for the retail trade is that the appear the most satisfactory. One yeard must be wider than the other, and frequently one part of an apron wears rough while the rest remains and with, which is saved in selecting the parts of a skin from which to cut the aprons. Every lady has learned this from experience.

Every part of an apron should be cut from one skin and the parts so selected that the whole will wear smooth all over. I am making the finest French aprons that can be produced, fitted in the nicest manner possible there by turning out a fashion book, constructed on the Metcalfe pattern last (improved), which is universally recommended by every one that has worn boots made on that last, and which justly merits the praise given it. The bottom stock of these boots is the finest that can be selected. Made in four widths and sizes, the comfort and durability of which cannot be produced. Every pair is warranted in every respect, and I would be pleased to have the ladies call and examine these goods, whether they want to purchase or not.

I also make Ladies' Boots to measure when desired. THOMAS HEARSEY.

THE FIRE AT OLD ORCHARD.

The Total Loss $100,000

Further Particulars of the Fire—The Losers, Etc.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, July 22. The loss by the burning of the old Orchard House is greater than at first supposed Mr Staples estimates his loss at from $75,000 to $80,000 and the total losses aggregate about $100 000 The heaviest private losers are Paul Brooks and family, of New York, who loses several thousand dollars worth of clothing and jewelry Those upstairs of the lower story saved most of their effects The Ocean House and other houses are all well sprinkled with the sufferers, though many left for their homes on to-day's trains Mr Staples is somewhat discouraged at his heavy loss and has formed no definite plans as to rebuilding but he will undoubtedly do so as great pressure will be made to that object by a part of his many patrons who have already drawn up a paper pledging him the support and patronage. The rumor of any is that the fire originated in a crack in a chimney lamp but the most attributes it to incendiarism It was only last Tuesday that the owners of the hotel lost their bathing-houses by an incendiary fire That or that the fire originated in the attic and so early in the evening accounts for the fortunate escape from loss of life, since the house contained over two hundred guests Among a portion of the buildings now standing is the ruined house in which the senior Staples commenced trading hoarders nearly thirty years ago.

Also, that worthless people who were able to work, whom he discharged, were by some secret means again hardened and supported in idleness on Ward's Island Also, that the Labor Bureau at Castle Garden was a rendezvous for abandoned and fifty women, and that the money spent generally was far in excess of that needed to carry on the legitimate work designed by the State He would give a million dollars' bokes to run the whole affair for $15 000 per annum only the head money of $1 a head; whereas it has cost the State several hundred thousand dollars per year, the past three years over the receipts from head money.

An Irascible M. P.—He is Put out of the House—A Scene that was Exciting

In the House of Commons this afternoon Disraeli announced that the Government had abandoned the merchant's shipping bill for the session. He expressed the hope that the session will be closed on the 12th of August, or possibly earlier. Mr. Plimsoll violently attacked the Government, saying the consequence of the abandonment of the bill would be the destruction of thousands of lives. He spoke vehemently and excitedly, using extraordinary epithets, stamp his feet and gesticulating wildly, setting the house in an uproar. Mr. Disraeli moved that Mr Plimsoll be removed from the House. The Speaker ordered Mr. Plimsoll to withdraw and he went out shaking his fists at the Government bench. The House then began a discussion as to what action was proper to take in regard to Plimsoll. Several speakers urged his excitability as an excuse Finally the debate was adjourned until next Thursday.

Further Description of the Scene in the House of Commons.

The scene in the Commons, caused by the violent speech of Plimsoll, was unparalleled. Plimsoll first earnestly implored the Government not to send thousands of persons to undeserved and unhallowed graves through the conduct of shipowners of murderous tendencies. Upon being called to order he advanced to the table and gave notice that he would as on Thursday next whether certain vessel of unseaworthy and murderous character should be allowed to go to sea. Disraeli, after Plimsoll had left, apologetically hinted that he was momentarily insane.

A physician has visited him, but his only prescription was food, and this he cannot be induced to take, saying he hopes his appetite may soon come to him. He says everyone is very kind to him, and he thinks this will be a good place for him to receive a fair and impartial trial. Officer Mickerson who thinks he had a clew to the would-be incendiary. Within a few feet of the place where the fire was kindled, in a room situated only from the entry, two young children were sleeping, and had the discovery been five minutes later they would have been enveloped in the flames, and perished. BANGOR MACHINE WORKS

Ground Broken at Treat's Falls, Yesterday Morning—Commencement of Active Operations.

As announced in yesterday's issue, a special train kindly provided without charge by Superintendent Angell, left from the Exchange street depot at 8 o'clock yesterday morning for Treat's Falls, the passengers including officers of the Fire Department, members of Union Hose, Eagle Three and the Hook and Ladder Company in uniform, city officials and private citizens. Upon reaching the place of destination the firemen, were formed into two sides of a hollow square, in single file, surrounding the site of the building which is to be erected by the Holly Company, its exact shape and locality being indicated by stakes.

At a point where the work of excavating was to be begun a dump-cart was backed up, which at 8.30 o'clock was utilized as a rostrum by His Honor, Mayor Laughton who addressed the crowd as follows:

Fellow Citizens Patriotism, like charity, begins at home. The man who feels an interest in the general welfare of his country will have at heart the prosperity of the town in which he lives; and he cannot have great pride in the length and breadth and possibilities of the country who does not take pleasure in anything that leads to promote the growth and develop the resources of his own city.

Nothing is more needed in Bangor than an adequate supply of pure water, and there is nothing which the citizens would hail with greater joy than its introduction. It will be a convenience; but not only that, it will be a luxury; but not these only, it is an absolute necessity, and nothing but the conviction that the interests of the community demand the immediate introduction of water could have determined those having the matter in charge to proceed at this time. Temporarily relying upon steam as the motive power; for everybody knows that the necessary power can be furnished by water very much cheaper than by steam.

And, thank God, here, in this noble river, is water enough, and in every drop of it there is power, and as nothing develops strength like opposition, so nothing can show the immense force of this volume of water so well as to place an obstacle in its way. Let that obstacle be a dam, and may it be placed here soon. Fellow citizens, you have waited long for this day to arrive. Nothing can please you better than to see the work commence.

The remarks of the Mayor met with the most unequivocal approbation, and upon their conclusion he removed his coat and amid prolonged cheers inaugurated the long looked-for operations by removing the first shovel-full of earth. He was followed by Commissioner Eaton, Chief Engineer Low, Marshal Bolton, Alderman Toben, Joseph F. Snow, Esq., Charles E Phillips, Esq., Alderman Low, Councilman Getchell, Foreman Mason of Union Hose, Foreman Lynch of Eagle Three, Mr. Maddock, Mrs. Albert Marsh, and others, each of whom added his or her quota to the first load of earth, amid the most general good feeling, which was evidenced by the remarks and suggestions gratuitously offered.

The colors of Union Hose and Eagle Three were raised above the spot where the initial operations were performed, and three hearty cheers were given for His Honor, Mayor Laughton, and three for the Board of Water Commissioners. These informal but highly satisfactory proceedings were witnessed by several hundred people, including a large number in private carriages. At the conclusion of the exercises the train returned to town.

Directly after the crowd had retired the first gang of about twenty men set vigorously about the work of excavating, and by night had made a big hole. The building will be in three sections, including the pumping house, fifty feet square, the boiler room and water wheel room being each thirty-six feet square. A temporary tool-shed has has already been erected, and is nearly completed. As soon as Mr. Pearsons, Superintendent of the Holly Company, receives advises of the shipment of the first load of pipes, which will be in a day or two, a force of workmen will attack the ledge near the residence of Mr. Mace

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

PAUL MASSIE. This charming story, by Justin McCarthy, was first published in England anonymously, and was very successful. It is now, for the first time published in this country over the author's name, and its stirring, romantic incidents, so finely blended with vivid sketches of natural character, will make it a popular story. It is a sensational story, with actors from the scale of ordinary humanity, written in a bright, effective style that renders it most pleasing to the reader. Sheldon & Co., New York, publishers. For sale at Bugbee's

AN IDYL OF WORK. This a poem giving the story of several girls who were operatives in a factory, and the author, Lucy Larcom, who "was at an early age familiar with the details of mill labor," has drawn it from memory as it then was. One can but admire its lively pathos, for the writer has given a life to her verses which no one not familiar with the subject could have given. To the reader it becomes more than a fancy sketch, for its characters stand out in vivid colors, heightened by the fine taste of the gilted authoress, and one perusal but creates the desire for many other careful readings. James R. Osgood & Co., Boston, publishers. For sale at Bugbee's.

CRUEL MAN. A friend of mine and I were across a "friendly" couple the other night, and a remark we chanced to overhear inspired him to relate this little story: Mr and Mrs ——, a married couple, both well to do in the world, were living in Philadelphia. Young Lady — was engaged to a gentleman, on whom she doted, and he on her, to the extent of — Yesterday positively, the third, with tears in her voice, "John, we must never see Mr. ——— again." "Then you shall not," said John, promptly. "But, dear John, he will be grieved." "Yes, let him! Better he should be grieved, than you."—Baltimore Every Saturday.

WASHINGTON.

From the Poem of JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL read at Lexington on the one hundredth anniversary of Washington taking command of the American Army:

O for a face of that heroic mould
With power to awe the base and fire the bold,
To overawe all mutiny, and inspire
Each wavering regiment, and wing the hire
Of fainting stragglers, nor pass Alexander's brook,
Or Hannibal his Alps, or Cæsar his Rubicon,
Without a claim, go forward to deserve!
Nor need I strain one influence of his name
Who more, a long mortality passed among
The equestrian statue with unbaptized brow,
That paces silent on through vistas of acclaim

What firmness more immovably august
Than that grave strength, so patient and so pure,
That could endure, when it wavered, most,
Then coldest, serenest, impenetrably sure,
Mirror of statesmen! its strange duty knowing?
Mirror, that reflected naught save what is true,
The truth itself seems less of fire than frost,
Cold but to such as love distempered views?
And if pure light as some deem, be the force
That dries as relenting passers on their course
Where burning river brings cool air to sparer sense?
Has wise the dear enthusiasm that burns long
To mortals, if right,
Red from itself and shy of human sight,
The holiest force that makes a lifetime strong,
And not abandons deed that it began
Preserving, may prove? What is passion for
But to subdue our natures and control
That great ocean main with tides returns,
Or wane, or make the shames the conqueror?
That fire was fed with substance of the soul
And mixed with holiest elements which burn
Through serpent slow years of impotence or war
Until when deaths were lost or lifelike wrong,
With breathless hope it saw the day-star blaze,
Yet manned not dumped, unquenchably the same,
Its inward self to be reached by flaws of time

Soldier and statesman, rarest union, you
Rich proved example of great deeds done
Simply as duties, worthy to possess worth
Beside a different guide to all men here,
Duty for himself, unless it were to God;
But for his servants, soldiers eloquent,
Training the snow to rear where they trod,
If I have yet in my listless age content
Of fame (so rarely Nature's self unbribed Save by the gem that noblest reside) should
Or have cried out when needed, or waited long
To join the cry, not that heart of mine
Is higher or nobler, nobler than in you
Who won all that and more, and all men's thank

THE ASYLET OF THE POTATO BUG.

The farmers of Connecticut and western Massachusetts have been raising unpleasant faces ever since the advent of the Colorado potato bug. This venomous insect has come up right foot summers in his journey from Colorado westward and he has now arrived at an advanced stage in business with a full determination to work in spots in the potato plants which a state is grandly big enough to contain. His reputation in the east has preceded him and he requires no formal introduction. His record to which he points with pride—after the manner of the modern politician, is a record of destructiveness hardly to be compared with anything except the ravages of the seven plagues and the potato bug has required
